

SMARTREFER - Your Complete Step-by-Step Installation & Activation Guide

Step 1 - Download Link

Click on the 'Download Extension from Chrome Web Store' button on our website.

This will direct you to the official Chrome Web Store page for SMARTREFER.

Step 2 - Access the Chrome Web Store

Once on the Chrome Web Store, click 'Add to Chrome' to install the SMARTREFER extension for free.

Note: At this stage, the extension cannot be used yet - it requires a valid license key.

Step 3 - Purchase Your License

Return to our website and click on the

'Get Your License

Pay Securely with Stripe' button.

You will be redirected to Stripe, a secure, globally recognized online payment platform trusted by millions of businesses worldwide.

For more information, visit: <https://stripe.com>

Step 4 - Complete the Payment

On the Stripe payment page, securely pay $4.99 for your personal SMARTREFER license.

All payments are encrypted and processed safely via Stripe's global payment network.

Step 5 - Receive Your License by Email

After the payment is processed, your license key will be sent to the email address you provided during checkout.

- Processing Time: Usually within minutes, but there may be a short delay while payment is verified.
- Important: Please check your Spam or Junk folder in case the email is filtered there.

Step 6 - Activate and Use Your License

Once SMARTREFER is installed on your computer, you can open it directly through its usage process:

1. Go to any Wikipedia article.
2. Select a word from the article text.
3. Right-click on the selected word.
4. In the contextual menu, click on SMARTREFER.
5. Two commands will appear:
 - Find articles with this in the title
 - Find 100 relevant articles
6. Clicking either option will trigger a pop-up asking for your license key.
7. Enter the license key you purchased and received by email.
8. Once validated, the extension will be fully functional and ready to use.
